He fought bravely against the sufferings of the disease and went down with a short time before his death. The funeral procession passed through this town about 11 o'clock Monday on the way to Longview Cemetery, Bethel, where the interment took place.

Deceased was a son of Thomas Gorrell, who died a few years ago in the Springfield neighborhood. Sam was aged about 25 years. He was widely known and had many relatives, as well as friends, who mourn his death. He was a fine young man, honorable in all respects. His mother and family are much sympathized with in their loss.

DAWSON'S MILL.

I stood on the hill as the sun went down And gazed through the haze at the fat old town. With my eyes saturated by impulsive tears That mirrored the wrecks of full fifty years.

Yet the fields and streams are the same as then, But I miss the forms of the boys and men That I cherished and loved so long ago Where the river rolls with its flash and flow.

And the curling smoke through the autumn air O'er the chimneys tops is hovering there. While the noise of the forge and the whirring mill Resound through the gloom from old Dawson's Mill.

But where are the boys and the girls I knew That roamed through the woods where the grass is blue. Where the smile and laugh and rollicking joke Were echoed back from the ash and the oak?

Ah! here at my feet in the church-yard laid Are my schoolmates dear 'neath the somber shade. While a requiem low o'er vale and hill I heard from the hum of old Dawson's Mill.

JOHN A. JOYCE.

Washington, D. C., April 26, 1903.
Editor Outlook, My Dear Sir: In pondering over the weeks of fifty years I had flashed into my mind this Sabbath morning a memory scene of long ago—Owingsville, the old graveyard and Dawson's Mill, that once rumbled and ground grain on the waters of old Slate.

Alf and Clark Bascom, John Ramsey, Will Daugherty and Goodpastor will remember.

Yours, for Old Kentucky,
JOHN A. JOYCE.

Dr. O. P. Clark and Miss Mattie Royce were married Thursday at the Presbyterian Church, Elder Cheek, of Louisville, officiating.

The Fiscal Court met Tuesday for the appropriation of money for the turnpike of the county for this year. They surely need it.

George Crites, who died in Chicago Thursday, will be brought here and buried Tuesday in Crown Hill. Mrs. Crites is a brother-in-law of C. F. Browning, of this place.

Stealing canvas from the tobacco plant beds is still going on here. As some of the parties are known there may be some developments later on. Any one who would do it is mean enough to strike his grandmother.

The funeral of Richard Wood, who died Monday, was preached at the Presbyterian Church Wednesday at 1 o'clock by Rev. W. W. Spates, of the Methodist Church, Dick, as he was familiarly called, was a member of the Presbyterian Church and an honest, upright, moral boy. His death in young manhood is deeply regretted not only by near relatives, but a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Interment in Crown Hill Cemetery. Col. A. T. Wood and son James H. Wood, Henry S. and Mrs. Hoffman Wood, of Mt. Sterling, and Rev. Thomas Wood, of Flemingsburg, attended the funeral.

The many old friends and acquaintances of Fred Howard here were proud to see him when he arrived here last week. He left here last Saturday for Fleming Co. on business.

Bill Snelling says if the fellow that borrowed his saddle at Owingsville three months ago would bring it home he could come to Odessa in peace now and ride all the way home.

Prof. Tapp closed his first term of singing-school here Monday night with satisfaction to all and hopes of another term right away, either at the school-house or church, or perhaps both. Mr. Tapp surely understands his business, and his instructions are surely needed in this and many other communities.

So it rained all last week, and so it may rain all this week, and it does so don't try to stop; you might get wet, and very likely you not stop it; it will quit sometime and in due time, so don't fret, but think:

If you were to gain the world In the fourth of a day You'd lose it all when one must say, "He's dead."

Then let us live on earth to die That when we live in Heaven we'll live.

Mrs. Ben Howard and daughter Miss Ida, of Nicholas Co., have been at Dr. A. W. Jones' for the past week, the former under treatment of the Doctor for rose cancer on the breast. She is doing nicely in every way. Another patient with cancer will be here this week for treatment. Quite a number

Knob Lick.
Another week of cold, damp, soggy weather.

Base fishing is not very few catch there.

There has not been a good day for plowing inside a month.

Butler Yarbrough's little boy who has been very sick is better.

The meadows are making a fine growth, despite the cool weather.

Bert Quisenberry, of near Ewington, spent the night here Tuesday.

Miss Lullie Quisenberry spent a few days with friends at Knob Lick last week.

Sam Jackson and Arthur Byron were here Wednesday delivering a car of fertilizer.

Boone Razor, the merchant at this place, has sold his interest in the store to Jeff Higley.

The gas well continues to burn day and night. If utilized it would run considerable machinery.

I. C. Shouse, who has been drilling on the Hedrick farm, will move a drill to the Flood hollow soon.

John Oakley and Leslie Flood have been appointed school trustees in this district; two very wise appointments.

There will be quite a lot of fertilizer used here this spring if the farmers can ever get any corn ground ready.

John Oakley has been taking the list of children in this district; there will not be as many as last year, which was 105.

John Clark crippled what he claims as a sea gull at the Company's pond Saturday. The bird is very little larger than a tame pigeon and resembles one in color and shape. The only discernible difference is a little longer bill and web feet.

I notice in last week's issue "Stoops" gives the Populists and Socialists a punch, claiming they are two dead bodies warring with each other. The Socialists and Populists do differ on some very important matters. While we both claim for public ownership of all public utilities the Socialists want to obtain them by confiscation, the Populists by buying them and operating them in the interest of the people outside the cost of operating. While the Populist party nearly went to pieces through financial failure they have not given up the fight. We are now in the throes of imperialism and the time is here—not to come—that Lincoln predicted: that the money would concentrate in the hands of a few and all of liberty would be lost. And, as the late Rev. Talmage said, the Democratic party killed itself before the war. The Republican party, owing to the opportunities growing out of the war, killed it.
